About Universities

Toyo University

Toyo University was established in 1887 by Dr. Enryo Inoue, and started as a philosophy academy. We have three Pillars for Nurturing Globally Talented Individuals, which are Philosophy Education, Career Education and Internationalization. First pillar emphasizes promoting education rooted in philosophy as a study which determines the principles behind all phenomena. Second one implies that offering effective support to help students become established in their careers. Third concept means fostering linguistic proficiency, cross-cultural understanding, and other abilities useful for playing important roles on the global stage.

Toyo University grew into comprehensive university with 13 undergraduate programs and 13 graduate schools. Now there are 5 campuses in Hakusan, Kawagoe, Asaka, Itakura and a new campus in Akabanedai.

Niigata University

Niigata University is the largest national university with 13,000 students on the Honshu main island along the coast of the Japan Sea (East Sea according to the Korean name).

The bullet train "Shinkansen" takes you from Tokyo to Niigata train station in about two hours passing through mountains in the center of the island. Niigata International Airport has direct flights not only to major Japanese airports such as Narita, Nagoya, Osaka, Fukuoka etc. but also to Inchon (for Seoul), Shanghai, etc. The City of Niigata has a population of 800,000, but it is characterized by various industries including agriculture. Actually the Prefecture of Niigata is well-known as the producer of the best rice of Japan. Its traditional industries, some of which used to produce hooks, hoes, knives etc. for local use, now produce the case of iPad etc., adjusting themselves to the contemporary needs of the world.

Because of these various industries, living costs are reasonable and the living environment is also agreeable, although those from warm countries may first be surprised by the weather in winter while enjoying snow and skiing in mountainous areas.
